CA 101 2013

Art Movements were a 20th century development, when a greater variety of styles were present than at any other period in the history of art.

CA 101 was conceived in 2012 with the intention of exploring works created by California artists. I wanted to see the various media and techniques artists are using, to appreciate the new tools, sensitivities and messages they are seeking to convey.

Living in California affects the work being done in classrooms, studios, garages and homes in major and small cities dotting the landscape of California. We reached out to art schools, art groups, individual artists, those who exhibited in museums and galleries and those who are just finishing their art education.

There is no fixed rule that determines what constitutes an art movement. The artists associated with one movement may adhere to strict guiding principles, whereas those who belong to another may have little in common. I felt that the current movement is characterized by the freedom to create and an acceptance of any tool, technique, or style to tell a story, a feeling, a moment, or a social or political message. Such principles are the foundation of creating and looking at art.

An art exhibition requires a magic thread running through the images which visitors encounter as they enter the space and walk through it, with each encounter leading to the next to form a whole experience.

We hope the thread found in CA 101 will guide you through different styles, techniques, media, mood and messages. Artists today use centuries-old techniques and viewpoints as well as new technologies and materials. Our collective experience of living today, in the state of California, in the United States of America, and in the world at large, is the thread that will capture your imagination, your feelings, and thoughts. Our hope is that CA 101 2013 will stay with you as you leave this unique space, which for a short while housed the hard work, creativity, imagination and the lives of today's California artists.

Now you are part of a movement.
